FIRE! SMOKE! WATER!

The past week at both our North and West Side Stores has been one of intense excitement. Crowds from all parts of the city came in quest of damaged goods, and received values that caused them to be highly delighted with their trip. About $10,000 worth of SILKS, VELVETS, DRESS GOODS, CLOAKS, WRAPS, SHAWLS, HOSIERY, GLOVES, UNDERWEAR, LACES, NOTIONS, LINENS, BLANKETS, LACE CURTAINS, etc., which were damaged by FIRE, SMOKE, and WATER in the disastrous fire at our West Side Store, remain to be sold at whatever they will bring. We settled most satisfactorily with the insurance companies, and our aim now is to clean out the entire stock of damaged goods irrespective of cost. Almost anything you want at your own price. You have only to see the prices at which we are selling goods to be convinced that you can at this FIRE SALE partake of the greatest bargains ever offered. Goods on sale at

The Kansas City Bridge Project.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 13.—[Special.]—It was currently reported today that John C. Perry, President of the Merchants' Bridge Company, had sent from Atlantic City the bids of the Lorch Bridge Company for the Merchants' Bridge. It could not be learned, however, that the organization of the Merchants' Bridge Company had been accomplished. The bids had reached the hands of the Directors of the Merchants' Bridge Company, and that the bids of the Lorch Bridge Company for the construction of the Merchants' Bridge were the lowest received. The bids of the Lorch Bridge Company were accepted by the Directors of the Merchants' Bridge Company, and that the

THE CONVERSION OF MR. AND MRS. ARMOUR AND HIS WIFE.

The First Marriage Ordered Null and Void and the Knots Tied Twice Over in a Fashion to Exhibit the Full Power of Presbyterianism Over Persons Lost to Her—What Is Going On at Lake Geneva, Waukesha, and Other Summer Resorts.

Correspondence Western Associated Press.

Delavan, Wis., Aug. 13.—[Special Correspondence.]—Among the interesting events of pleasure-seeking, fortune, chess, interest, and social intrigue and foregoing this year there will scarcely give more than a passing glance to the elderly couple-bound man who recently to be met with wandering along the parkways or about the grounds in an abstracted manner. That is, one would scarcely give his more than a passing glance, unless they knew the strangely eventful history of this man, who with his wife and family is an enduring one of the unique look for the season. He is Mr. Tim Brooks of Kentucky, who was the first person to make the experiment of taking Americans over here to England, with other persons to visit towns, in addition to the advantages of good breakfast. Mr. Tim Brooks is one of the most diligent players in the country, and during his last visit here to England was a great favorite with the Prince of Wales, who is an ardent lover of the game. But it is to his private life more particularly that the greater need of interest attaches. Mr. Tim Brooks's wife was the beautiful Miss Tina Smith of Kentucky, whose first husband was Mr. Tyler Morrison. At the time of his first meeting with his future wife Mr. Brooks had just come to Europe to be at leisure and possibly a relative and not yet free to marry. Of the divorce which followed the marriage of Mr. Brooks and Miss Morrison and the subsequent events there is no occasion to speak here.

It is enough to say that the marriage was a most happy one, for long the court Mr. Brooks found himself passing very much time in the company of the beautiful young girl whom fortune had made his friend. Mr. Brooks's acquaintance with Miss Morrison ripened into a friendship which rendered separation very painful to both. The story does not say that the parents of the young girl were favorable to her marriage, but it does say that Mr. Brooks would have had to wait for the time of Evangeline to visit Acadia before he could have taken a divorced lady from the Kentucky metropolis to the Presbyterian metropolis of the Quaker City as his wife. Mr. Brooks's determination and the strength of his love, however, overweighed all these difficulties, and the marriage took place. Then came the question of how they were to live. Mr. Brooks would never live in the house

CHICAGO ELOCUTIONISTS.

HOW THEY GIVE THE VOICE AND THE PROPER HABIT.

[illegible] of the art of speaking in the Eastern metropolis—The 100 Years Before Entry Into the City by the Great Colonel Prichard of the Sheridan's Cavalry, General Averell, Robert L. Fowler, Jack Crawford and Others.

There are as many years ago, while it was the custom of the Boston to get out of town every week night to see that great genius who was then making London laugh, the good people of Chicago did not go to the extent to see that they could hear Dickens. Like most other customs in Chicago, this one was soon given up, and it is only now that time is accustomed to call such people together for the purpose of hearing the voice and simple songs of Whittier or the humorous readings of Eugene Field. Dickens is to the fashionable but unappreciative audiences of Auditorium Recitals what the country-school girl of the "big stick" is to the "big stick" of the boarding school. She is a fair contrast to the elocutionary genius in such entertainments as the "Tale of Two Cities" and "Nicholas Nickleby." Even Uncle Remus, Chicago speaks to the Atlanta Constitution, and such writers as Miss Murfree, Thomas Nelson Page, Joel Chandler Harris, Opie Read, Irving Bacheller, Hamlin Garland, Robert W. Chambers, Stephen Crane, and Richard Harding Davis are not to be heard in the Auditorium. Chicago is not a literary city, and it is not a musical city, but it is a city of elocutionists. Every one of the 1,700,000 people who live in Chicago has a voice, and every one of them has a desire to cultivate it. Some of the people who have heard the voices of Chicago say that they are not musical, but they are elocutionary. Every one of them has a voice, and every one of them has a desire to cultivate it. HOW GRANT WAS AMUSED.

A CHICAGO GIRL'S ADVENTURE WITH A CHANCE TO LAUGH.

[Ask "Night to Beat a Sailor"—A Chicago Girl's Experience in Buying Some Confectionery from a Dusky Damsel Who Wanted—The Duke of the Barrow Chatter—A. M. Robinson's Apt Reply to Senator Ingalls—Wives of Rear-Admirals in the Navy.]

Mrs. Grant was rarely known to smile and the occasional ones that indeed shone like flashes on the border down as to permit this to forget sunlight—though he was far from being devoid of a certain fund of good story or joke.

There was one time in 1872, however, when he indulged in a rare of laughter that might have been heard for a quarter of a mile. It was while he was filling the Presidential chair and made the city in the Rebels, he, and followed the famous speech on situation—the first time I was discovered that he really could make a good speech. He had been to the Lotus, and came to the old Sherman House—not National one here. He spent through the little Town of Shandaken, twelve miles from the Kaaterskill line, at a church at eight, a crowd had assembled, composed—among those being the Chief Justice who always lived up to great occasions, and had therefore come to the emergency and was to a conference on the approval of the Presidential party to interest with a King. The town hotel at the station for several minutes, and to suppose to dispose Francisco from engagement on the platform and other hot to kill, attention fashion. The old town hotel at the side looking over, and from deliberately displayed up on the platform, standing Grant for the rolling and subsequently forced him face down to the address this condescension before him. There was a loud shout, the authority of the old evening the crowds to come to front of the house, personal presence, and a log to see a really genuine. For a few minutes the crowds were amused and dazed, but I can tell you.

"I am an Irish Giant Grant!"

The features of the face of Commodore on hearing a little as he smiled affectionately.

"Come, now, Grant, please, prolong the fun. Show of mine, I don't have to Fun's Town, eh?"

The smile was not given by the lucky Major evening to, and possibly the Commodore on the ground, but he suggested Grant with a hearty laugh, which many Grant with a hearty laugh, which many Grant with a hearty laugh, which many

TWO MAGNIFICENT SERVICES GIVEN OUT BY ST. PETERSBURG MILLIONAIRES.

An Irish Railway Laborer Makes Some Delightful Jokes on a Plan for Electric Elevation Railways in the Provinces of Ireland—A Hot Walk a Mile in the Sun—How Hard Cash an Aged Friend Won.

One of the millionaires of St. Petersburg, Russia, has a peculiar room in a residence which he has recently built, which is at once the most expensive and oddest apartment in the Russian Empire. The furnishings of this room, although rich and handsome, are rather stocks than otherwise, the engineer and heavy being in the main and ceiling, which are entirely built with thousand-ruble notes. The ceiling, instead of being a mass of white, according to the prideful owner, is composed of a profusion of 5-ruble notes pasted with mathematical precision after about a two-foot space. The walls are covered with French, English, Italian, and Russian bank notes, arranged in most charming designs. Many distinguished guests from all parts of the world have been admitted to this curious room, among them one of the most celebrated members of our town was invited to the room of the rich owner to smoke his cigar there, after conversing the room with admiration he placed up on the assembly host and said with a smile: "It is really a pity that you have already dozens of your money in the same manner which you have expended here. I would have recommend your architect to have covered your walls with 10 or 25 ruble notes, which would have given you a much more handsome appearance."—[St. Petersburg Correspondence Chicago Herald.

WE ARE A MUSICAL PEOPLE

Great as, when we have our own and true composers.

The New Opposite Front the New Yorkers Are to Enjoy This Winter Week—Hopes to Be Here Absolutely Nothing—A Hall for Manager Hayden to Bring His Company Here—A Second Engagement in Modern Furnishings for the Season.

Chicago people may be interested to know that according about the magnificent operatic season which is to be offered to them in Chicago during the approaching season. It is true we have no regular residence in this city, but every a series of delightful concerts which do not brought us from our cities, but from the art "a musical people"—which we have then and enthusiasm to be, which is not every where.

The New York Metropolitan Opera House company promises a rather fine list of operatic works for the coming season. The list of names announced includes Jean de Reszke, Plancon, Edouard de Reszke, Lassalle, Bispham, Van Dyck, Saleza, Gilibert, Mertens, Lieban, Journet, Scheff, Nordica, Eames, Sembrich, Calve, Suzanne Adams, Lucia Valeria, Ternina, Bauermeister, Homer, Louise Meisslinger, Mantelli, Wotton
